The Word of God[1] for the Twenty-first Sunday after Pentecost

I am embracing with the Father the citadel of My word on the hearth of the Romanian nation, the first land that came out from the waters at the creation of the visible world, and now, at the new birth of the world and all that is, I am leaving My word in its book today on this land, where I have a house for My word to stop on earth among men, oh, and there is nowhere a place more full of light and heaven on earth than this citadel, which shelters the One Who made the light with the word and all that was seen later in light, so that they could be seen, and I, the Son and the Word of the Father, govern the world and all the good and bad things over the world of men, the world that does not know about the glory of God between heaven and earth, if it has no one to tell it about this glory and all its splendor, which covers with gifts from above those who believe and those who do not believe in God; however, behold, I have placed the citadel of My word in the light, and from it I share My light over earth until it proves the righteous, the unrighteous when the angelic hosts will count the right and the left, as it is written in the Scriptures the word of My mouth two thousand years ago, when I came from the Father to men and was not received by men, when the great ones of the earth sent Me back; nevertheless, they sent Me victorious over them and over the antichrist, whom they were serving, and they remained the ashamed ones of all times, for all times on earth have taken the bad example of those of old, of those of that time and of those of later times, and the Lord is not desired and is not received on earth because of the greatness of the great ones, who, like Lucifer, have wanted and set themselves up as greater than God, and the Lord remains the unseen One, and no more than that, for so decide those who wrote on theirs the kingdom of God among men, lest men seek to find it again and may they embrace the path with God, the glory of the cross, the glory of the resurrection, God's place with people on earth, My love between them, between Me and them after that.

Peace and heavenly embrace over the citadel of My word from which I come forth with the speech of My mouth and embracing My country of today!

Peace to you, My country, Romanian land, My Bethany at the end of time! I am comforting you with the word and calling you Mine, while the unbelievers and strangers to God on earth are hiding you from Me! I am here, I am in your midst within My chamber, with My sun, through which I still keep My light over the earth, for two thousand years ago, I said that as long as I would be in the world, I would be the light of the world, and I, out of pity for the world, have come to you with a word and made My home on your land, My country of today.

Oh, there is no more salt to salt the earth with, there is no more, for there is something else that wants to be salt. Oh, if salt does not salt, in vain does it bear this name, for it is tasteless, without power from above.

Here is a day of darkness over you today, My Romania! It is Sunday, a day called the Lord's Day, and in you the antichrist has his great celebration with many people called to see his work adorned with gold and jewels, (Consecration of the painting of the "Cathedral of the Salvation of the People" by the Romanian Orthodox Church, r.n.), which takes the eyes of those who are not raised in church and are not shepherded towards God, for the shepherds, who have taken the seats known as holy, have sat down great and are extending their kingdom on which they have written the name of God and are making temples for the kingdom of the antichrist, the one who pulls down the stars from the sky, as it is written, the Christians who do not know much about God, and in order to delight them at the sight of the golden wonders and to attract them from the service of Christ, for the Christian life is not what is seen above the garment, and it is the mystery of the love of God in man, in his devoted heart to the Lord for eternity, and behold, how much suffering, how much sighing and how much mourning is ascending this day to the throne of the Lord, and in no way is the Lord looking otherwise upon the day of the numerous gathering of people, great and small, for yet another sign upon those who are singing the service of consecration of the great temple erected in the heart of the country, and at which the soldiers of the antichrist are praised and magnified as holy servants.

I am looking with the Father and the saints at the boundless pride, which is still growing under the name of the church of Christ. Flocks of people have gathered and are still gathering, called or brought before those who have gathered to sanctify the great temple for God, as they say. Oh, it has always been like this on earth from those who have sat down to stand tall before people and their temples have remained a testimony to them, oh, and how good it would have been if their holy life and its traces had remained among people and holy fruit for heaven had remained behind them!

On this day, hierarchs and priests, some greater than others, have crowned at the head of the flock, gathered, and they recited the consecration of the portraits of the saints placed on the walls of the temple so great, as if for God, as they say. Oh, how much pride, how much pomp! I, the Lord, did not say that there should be pride in the church, in the house that bears My name. I said worship in spirit and in truth, not in temples. I said true worship and true worshipers, and this is not in what the great ones on earth do in My name.

The saints lament when they see the work of the antichrist in a known holy place, and people no longer know how to find the way to heaven, stop to see, hear and listen to those who do not love God; however, on the contrary, have taken on the garment of a saint and are storming the face and name of God and calling to their party the world that does not find the holy path with God on it.

Oh, where is God in the work of these, who have adorned themselves with garments and crowns of saints, in golden temples, and call the world to see them? I, the Lord, am not in this mixture with the people of antichrist, for how could I still be the true God fighting with this enemy, so mixed in the house known of God among men?

Behold, how much guilty joy there is today in the house of the known church of Jesus Christ! The antichrist is joyful, he is welcomed by people great and small, oh, and the people gathered do not know what is being done behind the scenery above the enemy's hand, which stains the place and the name and the church of Christ!

And I, the Lord, am with all the heavenly and angelic retinues and hosts here, above the citadel of My word, from where, with all these holy servants, I protect the land and the Romanian nation, the country of My coming as word on earth, so that all those to whom the Father will reveal Himself through Me, His Son, Jesus Christ, Who has His coming, His word, His book, His people and His testimony over men in these days, when I, the Lord, fight with the beast, with the antichrist, and My weapon is the word of My mouth, (II Thessalonians: 2/8)[2] under which the antichrist turns yellow like wax and will continue to turn yellow soon, soon, and the Father Sabaoth will confess Me once again His as beloved Son, in Whom He has pleased and is pleased in this world of unbelief and lies, lest in the absence of lies the Lord may prove Himself to be the Master and Shepherd who came from heaven, the True Shepherd, and Who will shame the lying antichrist in a saint's garment, just as he and his people are still rejoicing today in a temple built by men and adorned with gold to attract many to glorify him as God, as has been his desire and search for two thousand years, since I crushed him through My resurrection and judged him like that then. And now the shame that I am preparing for him with My saints will be even heavier, more oppressive, and which will be to stop his steps and take his full reward, which he alone has earned by fighting against Me. And you, My Romanian country, are Mine with all My story with you in your midst, even if you do not know this enough; however, you will rejoice with your saints, for soon your face from God will be seen on this land, and then it will be the sweetest celebration for Me, for you and for those who will find you and embrace you for My glory in you, kept secret until now, for God works like this, full of humility and mystery, gentle and humble, as He is your Shepherd, and you are My gift from the Father, and this has kept you for Me until the end, until now, and now I am taking and carrying you in My arms announcing Myself with you over the earth, and My glory and yours is coming, and those, who love the Father, are coming to it for Me and for you, for the Lord is coming to you and is not leaving again, and you will smile under your mysterious sun and you will show yourself a bride with a Bridegroom, and the wedding will be forever, (See the selection topic: „The Wedding of the Lamb[4]", r.n.) for I, the Lord, have eternity to establish on your land now, oh, My land today, to which the Father sent Me to come and be, and let us now be light and salt on the earth, and with these let us work renewal in all, oh, My land today. Amen, amen, amen.
